Worker finds missing plane

A model plane enthusiast who lost a plane several weeks ago got it back after a construction worker read about the missing model in an IJ article about the Society of Antique Modelers.

Pat Rusk found the rubber band-powered plane a few days ago near Deer Island. He told Ron Keil he didn't realize what it was until he read the story. Keil, who last flew the plane from a field next to the Olive Ridge Tennis Courts on Atherton Avenue, said the plane came back in good condition.
